Destination 2010

Ready to move beyond the tried-and-true? We present the five places—revamped, revved up, and ready to be (re)discovered—that adventurous travelers will be heading to this year

ADVENTURE

Myanmar

Dissident leader Aung San Suu Kyi has changed her position on tourism: She now believes more visitors might help the political situation, so responsible travelers can head to this Asian up-and-comer with a clear conscience. Myanmar has a distinctly audacious side: Outfitter Remote Lands can organize kick-boxing lessons in Yangon (the sport originated here in the fifteenth century), hot-air balloon rides in Pagan, and treks to the 10,150-foot summit of Mount Victoria—whose national park has tigers, bears, and leopards (646-415-8092; from $1,000 per person per day, including flights within Myanmar).
